Noted Choir On Mokena Home Coming Program

Twenty-three committee chairmen of the Mokena Home Coming and Fall Festival sponsored by the Mokena Civic Association met last Thursday evening and outlined what each expects to present in making this another banner year.

As one of the attractions it was reported that the Kiwanis Band of Chicago Heights will be present and will give one of its very fine concerts which are always enjoyable.

It was reported that the forty voice choir of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church of Chicago has accepted an invitation to sing on Sunday evening, August 24th. This is one of Chicago's finest Church Choirs and the Mokena Civic Association is proud to present it to the community as one of its major attractions.

This indicates that the various chairmen are putting forth every effort to make this another worth while Home Coming and no effort will be spared in entertaining the public.

The regular monthly meeting of the Association will be held Monday evening, July 21st in Hatch Hall. All members are urged to attend and bring their report of radio ticket sales as the awarding of radio is to be held that night.

Picked Up Twice On Reckless Driving Charge

Delmar Genens of Frankfort tried some fancy stunts in reckless driving in Mokena last Wednesday evening and was arrested by Constable George Bennett on complaints of reckless driving signed by two Mokena residents. Genens was arraigned in the court of Police Magistrate Albert Hentsch in Mokena and assessed a fine of $10 and costs and his driver's license was revoked for 30 days.

Just recently Genens was arrested in Frankfort for reckless driving on complaint of Mayor George Sangmeister and was fined $20 and costs for the offense.

Mokena and Frankfort are out to curb reckless driving and more arrests will follow in both towns if reckless driving is continued.

Howard Eisenbrandt Wins 3rd Place In Ayrshire Contest

Another boy from this locality wins honors. Howard Eisenbrandt, Route 2, Lockport, a member of the Frankfort-New Lenox 4-H club, was awarded third place in the Ayrshire contest sponsored by the Prairie Farmer.

As a reward for winning in the division of the purebred calf essay contest, Harold along with eight other Ill. 4-H club members who were winners are to be awarded prizes with suitable ceremonies at the Ill. State Fair Aug. 9 to 17.

His prize will be a pure bred Ayrshire bull calf it has been disclosed. The contest open to bona fide 4-H members in Illinois and Indiana included information relative to the various breeds of dairy cattle.

Each competitor wrote his own essay as a result of his 4-H experience and in addition to research.

Big Firemen Parade At Orland This Sunday Afternoon

Sunday, July 20th will be a big day for Orland Park if the weather man permits. On that day the Orland Park Fire Department under the leadership of Chief John Helenhouse will stage a huge parade to be followed with a picnic in the Gee Grove along Orland Lake. The big parade is set to start at one o'clock sharp and will proceed down 143rd street to the Southwest highway and on into the Gee Grove.

The parade promises to be a big affair. The New Lenox and Lemont Bands, 70 twirlers, gaily decorated floats of local business concerns as well as a very outstanding float by the Pure Milk Association will participate in addition to a large number of neighboring fire departments. Chief Helenhouse has issued invitations to about 16 fire departments to be in the parade with their fire fighting apparatus. Included are the fire departments of Mokena, Frankfort, Lemont, Tinley Park, Willow Springs and other nearby towns.

At the grove there will be a big variety of games, sports, band concerts and prizes galore.

Plenty of eats and refreshments and lots of free parking space. A grand time for all. Come.

Driver And Dog Hurt In New Lenox Auto Collision

Saturday morning about 7 o'clock the junction of Cedar road and the Lincoln Highway in New Lenox was the scene of an auto accident.

Thomas W. Waples, 70 years old of New Lenox was driving north on Cedar road and had stopped for the intersection and is said to have just started to cross the Lincoln Highway when a car driven by Roy Stellwagon of Frankfort going west on Lincoln Highway clipped the rear of Waples car spinning it around, but not upsetting it. The impact threw Mr. Waples out of the car and he landed in front of the Herbert Bruns tavern. He suffered cuts and bruises and suffered from shock. Mr. Waples had his pet dog with him. The canine also was hurled from the car and was cut about the head and was so frightened he ran home. Mr. Stellwagon escaped injury.

Softball Tonight Peotone vs Robins

In keeping with the Major-league calibre of ball being presented at Robinson's field this year, the management has scheduled two high-class ball games for this week-end.

Tonight at 8:30 the Mokena Robins will play hosts to one of the best teams in this locality—the Peotone Merchants and on Sunday evening at 8:30 the Fiedler and Moore's also a top bracket team, will try to clip the wings of the Robins.

Last week with "Slug" Wilson using his "magic ball", the Robins beat Frankfort in a thrilling 13 inning battle, 3 to 2.

Joliet Girl Becomes Bride of Harold Smith of Frankfort in Elaborate Ceremony

Miss Hildegard Hirsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Koetsner, 654 Summit street, Joliet, became the bride of Harold A. Smith of Frankfort at the 8 o'clock nuptial mass on Saturday morning in St. John's Roman Catholic church in Joliet with the Rev. Constantine Bach officiating.

White roses, palms and gladioli banked the altar where the bride was given in marriage by her father. Preceding the wedding vows, "Oh Lord, I Am Not Worthy" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" were played on the organ.

Attending the couple as matron of honor and best man were Mr. and Mrs. George Hirsch, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. The bride's nieces, Miss Norma Tucci and Miss Delores Driek, acted as junior bridesmaids, while the ushers were Raymond Smith, brother of the bridegroom and Samuel Tucci.

Lace ruffling faced the sweetheart neckline of the bride's white mousseline de soie, princess style gown. Rows of laceedged ruffles, beginning at the waist and tapering to a train, formed the skirt. The short, puffed sleeves were lace edged, and the elbow-length, fingerless gloves were of matching lace.

A bouquet of cluster gardenias and lilies of the valley held the bride's fingertip length tulle veil in place. Her pearls were a gift from the bridegroom. White gladioli, bouvardia and roses composed her colonial bouquet.

Powder blue frosted organdy, princess style with a sweetheart neckline, elbow length sleeves, and a full skirt, was worn by the matron of honor. On her head she wore an open crown poke bonnet of blue straw trimmed with velvet blue ribbon. In her colonial bouquet were picardy gladioli, blue delphinium and Pervian lilies.

The gowns worn by the bridesmaids were peach organdy styled like Mrs. Hirsch's dress except that they had short sleeves. Their poke bonnets were of the dress material and their bonnets were like the matron of honor's.

Following the wedding, breakfast was served to 50 guests in the McCulloch tea room. A three-tiered wedding cake, decorated the table and a bouquet of white gladioli, flanked by tall white tapers, was the centerpiece.

A reception was held in the tea room from 2 to 4 o'clock and Mrs. Wm. Sheridan and Miss Josephine Rositch poured. The newlyweds will make their home in Joliet at 654 Summit street.

Congressmen Opposed To War Says Mundt

One of the most thrilling and significant demonstrations of the sentiment of the people against war was the convention of chapter chairmen of the America First Committee from all major points of the United States held in the Palmer House in Chicago last Saturday and Sunday.

Chairmen of 118 key chapters from Boston, Massachusetts to San Diego, California attended the meetings.

General Robert E. Wood, National Chairman of the America First committee presided.

At the Saturday afternoon session the chairmen were addressed by Congressman Karl Mundt of South Dakota who pointed out that all Washington recognized the fact that it has been the America First Committee, through all its chapters, which has won the battle against convoys and kept the country out of war to date. He enthusiastically predicted new and repeated victories in the Senate and House and told the Chairmen that the non-interventionist forces had increased considerably in both houses in the past three weeks. Congressman Mundt told the convention that there are not 40 men in the Senate and House who would vote for war. He urged a vigorous mail campaign on Congress and the President.

In the evening, following an address by General Wood and Hon. Sam Pettingill, former Congressman from Indiana, the chairmen drafted resolutions demanding the removal of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and commending Senator George for his stand against the war.

Low-Cost Houses Foundation For Healthy, Happy Home Life

Some of the 48 houses being removed above to make room for new homes which will have comfortable and modern living quarters, similar to the top scene. This slum clearance project is being sponsored by the city of Frankfort, Ky., and will house 61 families who previously occupied the area shown here.

WASHINGTON.—Pounding hammers, buzzing saws, swishing paintbrushes and rattling plumbing are harmonizing in a new song of progress as the nation pushes forward its new-born drive to bring better low-cost housing to millions of families in the smaller cities and towns throughout the land.

Hundreds of small communities are swinging into the movement as Uncle Sam and many of his nephews carry on the task of doing something about the 10,000,000 American families living in homes that are considered to be dangerous to health and safety. While the big city slum clearance and rehousing campaigns have been marching along for several years, it was not until recently that the equally important rehousing drive in the smaller towns moved into high gear.

Families that had always lived in dilapidated houses without the "decent necessities," are getting new thrills by switching on real electric lights, trying out their own bathtubs, cooking in airy kitchens, while the children play and romp around the landscaped lawns and in the playgrounds. While the living conditions of these families have been revolutionized, they pay the landlord about the same rent they paid in the old places, when he comes around every month.

Playing the leading role in the growing rehousing movement is the federal government, through the United States Housing authority, thanks to the $800,000,000 that congress dropped in its lap to lend to local communities. Although a sizeable part of this pile of dollars has gone into cleaning up the blighted areas of big cities, an increasing share has been pouring into small cities and towns during the past 12 to 15 months. About 80 communities of less than 50,000 population have already benefited by the USHA program. As a part of its rural housing drive, new farm houses for 1,300 low-income families have been completed within the last year, and 203 housing authorities have been created to speed the program.

Twin Houses.
A typical example of the USHA program in action in the small town is found at Mount Hope, Va., where the census taker counted 2,361 men, women and children last year. Borrowing 90 per cent of the needed $238,200 from the federal agency, the local housing authority raised the other 10 per cent by issuing bonds, and proceeded to demolish the rows of 36 tottering shacks that had been the homes of workers for the nearby coal mines. To house the evacuated families, and others in the town, 70 dwelling units are now being built in the form of twin houses extending along a narrow strip of rolling land about three-quarters of a mile long, facing a site being developed as a park. Each family will have a lot of 40 by 210 feet for raising some flowers and fresh vegetables in the summer.

Government is not the only driving force in the new movement. One of the most encouraging developments now taking place is the increasing interest and financial support being given by large corporations with plants in the communities.

To qualify for a new housing project it was necessary for the city of Frankfort, Ky., to agree that a collection of 48 shanty houses be demolished. The Schenley Distillers corporation contributed $25,000 for the purpose, and the way was cleared for 61 families living there.

In Chicopee Falls, Mass., the Chicopee Manufacturing company undertook to turn a row of century-old dilapidated houses into a clean, modern and attractive group of homes. Today the tenants are living in the remodeled houses, with play and garden fields, at rentals running from three dollars a room per month for three rooms, up to four dollars and sixty cents a room per month for five rooms.

Government and corporations are also digging into their pockets to put up money to speed the building activities for poor groups.

And local citizens are stepping up to shoulder some of the load in many towns. In Vincennes, Ind., for instance, a group of 25 leading men and women, joined as the Vincennes Emergency Relief committee, decided that something had to be done about a squatter settlement of non-descript hovels that stood along the river bank. Known as "Pearl City" because the inhabitants depended on mussel fishing for a livelihood, and sometimes found valuable pearls, the settlement had stood for 30 years as an eyesore, and a menace to health.

The Vincennes group arranged for the demolition of Pearl City, and erected "Sunset Court" for the families. Here are 20 houses, arranged in a quadrangle, with a four-acre court in the center; 14 are two-room houses, and the other six are three-room houses. Every home has a small porch, facing the center court, a drilled well, a coal shed and chicken house, and modern sanitary unit. Each tenant has signed a lease to pay one dollar a year as rent, agreed to keep the house and surroundings clean and in good repair, and works two days a month on the site.

East Oil Problem Is Becoming Acute

NEW YORK CITY.—Adequate distribution of oil supplies, vital to a motorized nation in both peace and war, is creating concern among United States government officials as more military airplanes, tanks and bouncing army "jeeps" (field cars) are lined up daily at gasoline pumps.

Secretary Ickes, appointed by President Roosevelt as petroleum co-ordinator for national defense, already has hinted at "gasless Sundays" in the Eastern states, where transfer to Great Britain of 50 American-flag tankers has cut down the steady arrival of oil. Congress is studying a bill designed to clear the way for laying an oil and gasoline pipe line system to the Atlantic seaboard from the Gulf states' oil fields.

"The current oil problem is largely one of transportation," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society, "for federal statistics indicate that aggregate supplies of gasoline, fuel oil, and lubricants are sufficient for anticipated needs. Oil reserves are at their highest point in the United States, which since 1906 has produced more than 60 per cent of world stocks."

"From 375,000 active wells—about twice the number in operation in 1917—petroleum companies in this country last year took a daily average of 3,500,000 barrels of oil. This was about two-thirds of world production. The vast Texas fields furnish about two-fifths of the domestic supply, with other important amounts coming from California; the Mid-Continent field of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and northern Louisiana; the Gulf coast area, which includes southern Texas, Louisiana and the Rocky Mountain region.

Mrs. F. Roosevelt Answers Critics Of Her Four Sons

WASHINGTON.—Four of the Roosevelt boys, sons of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, have commissions in the military and naval forces of the United States.

Did these boys get their commissions with Uncle Sam through "inside pull" or did they actually work for and earn them?

Writing in the August issue of the Ladies Home Journal, Mrs. Roosevelt answers a letter which questioned her pointedly concerning the technique required to secure commissions. This statement will no doubt let loose another flood of both criticism and praise.

Mrs. Roosevelt responds in part: "As far as I know, the most important thing, in order to obtain a commission today in our military services, is to be qualified to have one. To do that, one must have done some work in the past which can be usefully applied in some branch of the service, and to have done it well."

Another way, she notes, is to qualify through reserve officers' training courses.

"Since you ask me specifically about my own sons, I will tell you exactly how they obtained their commissions."

"James took the course in college. He was then taken into the marine corps and did the required training as a reserve officer, long before the present emergency, to hold his commission. When his father went to South America, James was given a high rank in order to be able to appear with his father at certain functions. On his return to the United States he himself asked his father to request his demotion. Before he was called as a reserve officer in this emergency he reported for duty in Los Angeles, where he was then living and worked with the unit with which he would be called to serve. He was actually called for active duty in that unit last autumn."

"Elliott had worked for a time on the West coast, and some of his first work was with an airplane-manufacturing company, and later he worked as an aviation editor for a newspaper. He learned to fly and held a license, but his eyes would not permit his entry into the army as a pilot. He knew that he would not be drafted because he has a wife and children, and yet he came to Washington and asked the army authorities where his experience could be of use. He was commissioned and, as far as I know, his work has been satisfactory."

"Franklin Junior took his navy training course in college and has done his cruise in the naval reserve every year since. He was commissioned an ensign as a result of the work, and has been in the reserves. He was called in April, and has been on active duty ever since."

"John, our youngest son, never was interested in anything military and took no courses in college. He has, however, applied himself to the merchandising business, and when he made his application for ensign in the supply corps of the navy, he explained that he was then an assistant manager of a branch store and was about to be made manager, and he thought his merchandising experience could be useful either on a ship or at a shore station. His number has not yet been called in the draft, and, like all other boys in the navy, he was taken as a volunteer. Of course, as you know, practice cruises and courses at Annapolis are now available to those who wish to apply, and the boys will be selected on their ability to qualify. John, like Elliott, unfortunately is extremely nearsighted, and for some branches of the navy service, that would be a bar."

Labor Employment Breaks
All Records for U. S. Jobs
CHICAGO.—Spring rains have ceased, but not the rain of jobs which have poured down in such a deluge that the National Industrial Conference board estimates that more than 50,000,000 Americans are now working, out of a potential 55,000,000 workers available. This figure sets a new record, never before in the nation's history, this private research group said, were so many workers employed at the same time.

U. S. action to counter
Jap attack on Siberia will depend on Tokyo moves...What is cost of Hitler drive on Russia?
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Will the U. S. defend Siberia as it has defended the Dutch East Indies against Japan?

That is one of the outstanding questions in Washington, and the answer will probably not come until Japan shows its hand. Japan was all set to take the Dutch East Indies, and perhaps French Indo-China, after the fall of the Low Countries. But Uncle Sam speaking through Cordell Hull, U. S. secretary of state, surprised the world by what seemed to be an ultimatum. The words of Mr. Hull did not state definitely that the U. S. would declare war on Japan if Japan attacked the Dutch East Indies, but they SEEMED to say just that. Beyond doubt they were so interpreted in Japan.

Incidentally, the best military opinion is that Japan "missed the boat." If she had moved swiftly, ignoring the words of Cordell Hull, it is entirely possible that she could have gobbled up those priceless islands which belonged to Holland, and that the United States would have done nothing more than we did when Mussolini was conquering the Lion of Judah. There was not the slightest indication that American public opinion would have supported the administration in a war against Japan, and there is very grave doubt whether—at that time—President Roosevelt would have unleashed the navy to attack Nippon.

Defense Preparations.

Moreover, except for the navy, nothing was ready. That was before this government rushed a lot of long range bombers to Manila. It was before another lot of long range bombers made in the U. S. was rushed to Singapore, threatening by their mere presence the bombing of Japan's oil reserves—which are extremely vulnerable—if war should break out.

Japan knew how vulnerable her oil reserves were. Despite the lack of bombers at the time in Singapore and Manila she decided to wait a more favorable moment. An important element in her calculations was conviction that Germany could not be stopped, and that Britain would be weaker before she was stronger.

Moreover that was before Japan and Russia had concluded their non-aggression pact.

Not that this pact means anything—from the coldblooded viewpoint of the military experts. Treaties and solemn promises are at an even lower ebb than in the famous "scraps of paper" era of the first World war. Japan will do, the experts believe, whatever is in her own interest at the moment.

Time Ripe for Attack?

Which means of course that she might now attack Siberia, while the Soviet is in a death grip with the Nazis. This brings us back to the point of whether we would take the same strong stand against such aggression in the Far East with respect to Siberia which we took in respect to the Dutch East Indies.

There is not the same degree of feeling. This country has always been very friendly with Holland, and our navy in particular has been certain ever since World War No. 1 that we would eventually have to fight Japan. In the case of Russia versus Japan this country was sympathetic with Japan, but that picture has long since gone out of focus. The country has turned anti-Japanese to an amazing extent since Japan's unprovoked war of aggression against China.

Hitler's Big Question: What Price Russia?

There is an old pipe maker in Chicago who runs to dreams and visions. In the summer of 1940 he predicted that Hitler would invade Russia in 1941, would take all of European Russia, but that it would cost him a million men. He also predicted that eventually Germany would lose the war but that it would all be pretty terrible before peace comes.

There have been those not given to visions, who dealt entirely with the logic of the situation, who believed that Hitler would find some excuse to attack Russia. The British have inclined to that view for a long time, but were unable to convince Stalin of the danger. They thought and urged at the time of Hitler's invasion of the Balkans that if Russia had leaped in then, with all the Balkans fighting with her against Hitler, the story might be different.

Now the question is how much the Russian campaign is going to cost Hitler. Whether it will yield enough in food, oil and supplies, not to mention slaves—for there is what the people of the conquered countries virtually become—to pay for the loss of men and the expenditure of war supplies in the fighting.

Man Chases Autos, Is Jailed for Safety

EL PASO.—Ricardo Corona's life is endangered by his own reckless conduct, but El Paso police solved the problem by putting him in jail to keep him from accidentally killing himself.

When he was ordered to go home and quit loafing in night clubs, Corona started chasing cars, trying to run into them.

Crash Airplane in Fight for Control

Suicide-Bent Student and Would-Be Rescuer Die.

WICHITA, KAN.—A suicide-intent flying student and his would-be rescuer crashed to their deaths after a dramatic struggle in the air for control of a pitching training plane.

Dead were William D. Woodward, 20, and John K. Blanpied, 21.

Coroner Lang P. Bowman said that three notes found in Woodward's automobile indicated that the youth intended to crash. One was addressed to a girl friend.

John Knightly, employee of the flying school who witnessed the take-off and crash, told this story:

Woodward arrived at the school early and taxied out a two-seat, dual-control trainer of a type heavier than he was qualified to fly.

Blanpied, also a student pilot and employed as a ground mechanic at the school, ran across the field and climbed onto a wing of the advancing craft. He reached into the cockpit and cut the switch, but Woodward threw the ignition on again and managed to get the plane into the air.

Again Blanpied cut the switch, and again Woodward caught up the sputtering motor.

Then as the rocking plane alternately lost and gained altitude, Blanpied climbed into the unoccupied front cockpit, gesturing and shouting.

He reached back, struggled with Woodward, but the latter put the plane into a dive.

The ship crashed in a meadow near the airport, strewn wreckage over an area of 150 yards. It did not burn. Both bodies were mangled.

Alphabet Takes on New Meaning in War Uses

LONDON.—The alphabet is overworked in this war. First the government went for A. B. C. tags. Now British boys have introduced initials into their love letters.

A British primer of the lovey-dovey alphabet would explain these abbreviations:

C.Y.K.: Consider Yourself kissed.

T.H.F.: Till Hell Freezes.

S.W.A.L.K.: Sealed With a Lover's Kiss.

F.L.A.K.: Fondlest Love and Kisses.

A British primer of government A.B.C.s would include:

F.A.N.Y.: First Auxiliary Nursing Yeomanry.

W.A.A.F.: Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

W.V.S.: Women's Volunteer Service.

A.T.S.: Auxiliary Territorial Service.

N.A.A.F.I.: Navy, Army, and Airforce Institute.

English Hamlet Gasps as Girls Vie for 'Tommies'

BRIDGEWATER, SOMERSET, ENGLAND.—Something has happened in the village. The girls are painting their lips, using mascara, face powder, nail varnish.

Nothing like it ever happened before. The village is scandalized. But the girls don't care. Because there is a war on—and soldiers are billeted in the village.

The advent of soldiers has caused terrific disturbances in the little villages of sleepy rural England.

Two girls at Bridgewater wanted so much to look attractive in the eyes of billeted soldiers that they stole coats they could not afford to buy.

In court, a solicitor said: "The tempo of village life has been immensely speeded up because of the soldiers. The girls desire to look attractive. That desire is almost irresistible to some girls."

The magistrates bound both defendants over.

Heart on Right Side but For Army It's All Right

LOS ANGELES.—Yukio Honda, 27-year-old American-born Japanese, is about as upset physically as a draftee can be and yet he has been sent to Fort MacArthur, Calif., with a "perfect health" tag.

When draft board physicians applied the stethoscope to Honda's heart for the first time they experienced some anxious minutes because they couldn't hear it beat.

"You can though," he said, "if you'll listen on the right side of my chest."

That advice helped. Doctors discovered that Honda's heart was on the wrong side. Further examination showed that his liver also was on the wrong side—the left.

But despite these displacements, doctors gave him a clean bill of health and sent him off to the army as, literally, "one in a million."

Best Fish Story Is About World's Largest Trout

So Big They Cannot Ascend River to Spawn; Build Ladders for Them.

RENO, NEV.—The latest, best and true fish story is about the world's largest trout, which weigh in as high as 46½ pounds, and can't make it up river to spawn any more because they're so big.

So the federal government (this makes any fish story authentic) is building fish ladders to help the big fellows lumber upstream so they can spawn.

The Nevada Indian irrigation works is spending $250,000 of federal money to help the trout upstream in the Truckee river, which flows by the Reno divorce courthouse, from Pyramid lake, 30 miles northeast of Reno, largest inland body of fresh water outside the Great Lakes.

The government is building fish ladders because the huge trout, which Wallace Beery, former President Herbert Hoover, Glenn ("Pop") Warner, the football coach, and other prominent sportsmen have caught, are unable to get up the shallow Truckee river to spawn.

Lake Slowly Evaporating.

The Truckee is a clear mountain stream which would be called a creek in the Middle West or South. It is the only place the huge Rainbow lake trout can go to lay their eggs, but for 50 years the lake has been evaporating at the rate of 523,000,000 gallons a day, according to H. C. Dukes, Truckee river watermaster.

So the big trout gradually have become marooned in their lake-prison of 130,000 acres of sky-blue water, with a few Indians on the banks. Springtime hasn't meant much to the huge trout and they've been there so long the natives have tired of telling stories about them.

Each year a nearby dude ranch offers a prize for the smallest trout caught—so tired of hearing about big fish have the people become.

The fish ladder, the government found, was the answer. Addicts to Walt Disney cartoons, however, should not picture a grandfather fish with a crutch and an old salt's hat trying to climb a rope ladder.

This fish ladder is to be a quarter million dollars' worth of piscatorial escalator.

It will be a sort of sportive Suez canal (on a fish scale), with many little ponds placed each above the other so the lumbering trout may make their pilgrimage in laps.

It's Life Saver.

Don C. Foster, superintendent of the Carson Indian agency, declared that the ladder will save the huge trout from extinction.

After negotiating the steps, or ponds, in the ladder, the fish, for the first time in 50 years, will have free access to that happy land where they have been unable even to thumb a ride for so long.

To pelicans, those wonderful birds which have a large rookery on the lake, this will be dire news, for the birds have had a habit of waylaying the trout as they tried to negotiate the hazardous route upstream.

Indians, also, will not particularly welcome the fish ladder, it was believed, as one of the favorite Indian sports used to be to stand with spear as the fish tried to go upstream, and bring home the beauties without angling for them.

But with the new ladder system, it was believed that the trout would be saved from man, beast and lack of family life, which threatened most.

The ladder is expected to be complete by next spring. The money was provided in an interior department appropriation measure passed recently.

Air Corps Recruit Finds Time Fast in Its Flight

SALT LAKE CITY.—Time in its flight almost clipped the wings of an anxious army air corps recruit here—before they had even sprouted.

Henry Clair Outzen of Marysville, Utah, was still within the air corps' 26-year age limit for cadets when he passed final army examinations, but neglected to enlist. It was more than a month later when enlisting officers, checking records, noted that one day remained before he would be 27, and too old to fly. A hurried telephone call to Outzen's central Utah farm home and an equally frenzied dash here by automobile salvaged the youth's flying career. He enlisted with just a few hours to spare before the age deadline.

Bride Gone for 20 Years; Husband Feels Deserted

HARTFORD, CONN.—Napoleon Boisse, 45, was granted a divorce on grounds of desertion after he told Superior Court Judge Ernest C. Simpson he hasn't seen his wife since the day she left him 20 years ago on the steps of the church after the marriage.

Boisse said his wife turned to him as they left the Salem, Mass., church and remarked:

"I'll be seeing you."

Boisse's lawyer told the court the woman's family hasn't heard from her in 20 years either.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 19 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon, and her father. Roper con-

CHAPTER XXVI

They buried Lew Gordon at Miles City. That dot upon the northern prairie marked, in effect, the farthest north reached by that great and dramatic upthrust of power which had welled up out of Texas, carving new trails, opening new vast countries, driving herds unnumbered, under the name of King-Gordon. Jody thought that her father would have wanted to lie there.

After that was done with, Jody went back to Ogallala.

All through the spring news kept trickling in. A swift bankruptcy was sweeping Thorpe's loosely grouped organizations. Wiped out of Texas by the so-called Rustlers' War, broken in the north by the Great Raid—the shaken power of Ben Thorpe crumbled fast, now that Thorpe himself was dead. A once unbeatable organization, powerful from border to border, was going down in such utter debacle as no man could check.

And as Thorpe's power vanished into the gunsmoke in which he had died, a strange new prestige began to attach itself to the name of the man who had destroyed him. Only a little while ago Bill Roper had been an outlaw, a hunted man with a price on his head, in whose behalf few men ever dared speak a good word. But now that his enemies were down, it seemed that the whole length of the Long Trail held men who professed themselves his life-long friends. Like coyotes after a killing, like worms after rain, Bill Roper partisans were rising up, a score here, a hundred there, where not one friend had been, during those smoky hours of his greatest need. Already men were less ready to remember what weapons he had used in fighting fire with fire than to remember simply that he had won. Three governors had issued blanket pardons for what he might or might not have done. He could have had almost any position he wanted near the top of any one of three or four of the great cattle companies. He could have had almost anything he wanted, then.

But Bill Roper—where was he? Nobody seemed to know. His own raiders—Tex Long, Hat Crick Tommy, Dave Shannon—now swaggering wherever they pleased amid a curious acclaim, did not know. And if Dry Camp Pierce, that one most trusted of all Bill Roper's men, knew where his leader was, he held his tongue.

Jody Gordon was making every effort to find out Bill Roper's whereabouts.

The weeks passed, and the new grass came on the prairie, and still there was no word. Two or three times a week, after the first spring flowers began to show, Jody Gordon rode out to the pile of stone with its wooden cross that marked Dusty King's grave, putting there little handfuls of blue Indian hyacinth and white anemone.

And then suddenly one day as she sat her horse before Dusty King's cross she knew that Bill Roper was alive, that he was near, that he had come. The notch that she had seen Bill Roper cut in the arm of Dusty's cross to mark the death of Cleve Tanner was well weathered by this time; but now, sharp and freshly cut in the opposite arm of the cross, was a second notch that had never been there before.

A choking lump rose instantaneously in Jody's throat, and she spun her pony in its tracks as instinctively her eyes swept the plain and the low hills. So freshly cut was the new notch upon the cross that it seemed Bill Roper must still be no more than a few minutes away.

In the clear light of the late afternoon she could make out every detail of the rambling little town of Ogallala, but nowhere was there to be seen any horseman. She turned her pony and rode home with a strange, empty, gone feeling, because for a moment Bill Roper had seemed so near and now was nowhere in sight.

When she had unsaddled she went into the tall white house by the back way, and walked through it slowly, preoccupied, wondering what she should do.

Then, as she came into the front room, her hand jumped to her throat, for someone was waiting for her there—a woman who stood up as Jody came in.

For a moment Jody Gordon hardly recognized Marquita. Only a little time had passed since they had faced each other in a remote cabin set in Montana snows, yet Marquita looked unmistakably older; and the live, sultry fire behind her dark, slanting eyes was gone.

"I lied to you," Marquita said at last. "I'm not sorry for that. I'd lie to you again, for the same reason, or for less reason. But this time it didn't do any good. So I thought I might as well tell you."

"You lied to me?"

"I told you I was Bill Roper's girl. You naturally thought I was at Walk Lasham's camp because Bill Roper was there." Marquita's voice sounded curiously metallic and ducted a series of great raids upon Thorpe's vast herds, first in Texas, then in Montana. Jody was deeply shaken when Marquita, a saloon hostess, convincingly explained that Roper loved Marquita, and not her. Believing that her love was unanswered, Jody left the man she loved. Lew Gordon finally old, without that sultry fire to back it up. "Well, that wasn't so."

"You mean—you mean to say—" "Well," Marquita said, "he did not belong to me, not even for one minute, in all my life. How do you think you would like that, in my place?"

"But—at the Lasham camp you said—"

"I know I did. I would have got him if I could, in any way I could. I even came here because I knew he was coming here. But now I can just as well tell you it's hopeless, and I'm through. After all, I don't need to run after any man; not any more."

"You mean—you're willing to let him go—even if—"

"Let him go? I never had him." An odd edge of contempt came into Marquita's voice, but whether for Jody or herself was not plain. "Can't you get that through your head?" She turned toward the door impatiently.

Jody Gordon supposed that she ought to thank Marquita for having come here, for having made the confession which she had made, but she was confused, and the words would not come. Instead she said, "Do you know where he is? Is he well? Is he safe and all right?" Marquita's smile was mocking. "You want me to find him and send him to you?"

"I think," Jody said, "he'll come."

"Okay," Marquita said, and she pulled open the door.

"I want to tell you something," Jody said. "I want to tell you I appreciate your letting me know—"

Marquita flashed a queer, hard smile; there was bitterness in it, more bitterness in her smile than in her words. "Keep your thanks to yourself." Then she was gone.

After a moment Jody heard the hoofs of a team, and the wheels of the carriage in which Marquita had come—and gone—slicing the deep mud.

Yet, Bill Roper did not come.

When two days had passed a panic caught Jody Gordon, and she began to haunt the vicinity of Dusty King's cross. She believed that Roper would not leave the Ogallala country without visiting once more the grave of Dusty King.

But it was the evening of the fourth day, before Roper came.

CHAPTER XXVII

Sitting her quiet pony beside Dusty King's pile of stone, Jody Gordon saw Roper riding toward her when he was still a long way off. Roper was not alone. Beside him rode a little grasshoppery figure in disreputable clothes which Jody recognized as that of Dry Camp Pierce. Somehow Dry Camp had managed to rejoin his chief when the others could not. It was typical of Dry Camp that he was riding beside Bill Roper now; would always be typical, so long as both of them should live.

The two riders hesitated at the five hundred yards. Roper said something to Dry Camp Pierce and after a moment or two Dry Camp turned his horse and went back. Bill Roper came on alone. Perhaps he feared this meeting more than anything he had ridden into yet—but she knew he would not turn.

It seemed to Jody Gordon that realized that Roper was right in fighting Thorpe and Lasham, and went gunning for them. Roper met him shortly before the two gunmen appeared. This was the moment Roper had been fighting for during the smoky years. Lew Gordon was killed, but so were Thorpe and Lasham.

time lagged forever as Billy Roper's pony slowly approached; it seemed to her that that slow approach was characteristic of all that had happened to them—delay, and delay, while wars were fought, and raids struck in, all through those smoky years in which they had been apart.

And yet, at last, when he stopped his horse beside her, and they looked at each other, there was something between them still, as if the smoky years themselves had built a wall.

Bill Roper said, "Hello, Jody. You're looking mighty well."

Jody said, "I'm all right."

There was a pause, curiously awkward; in the pause, Jody's horse struck at the cinch with a hind foot, tormented by an early fly.

"You didn't come to see me," Jody said.

"Well," Bill Roper said slowly—"I didn't know if you'd want me to."

"Don't you know that you're half of King-Gordon? And I'm the other half."

"Jody—people like you and me can't go by things like that—things like legacies and wills."

Jody's voice was very quiet, yet it must have seemed to Bill Roper that she cried out. "You're going to leave me to carry all this, just by myself?"

"Lew Gordon left a sound organization," Bill Roper said, his voice dead. "You have many men, and good men, too. The works will roll, I think, with Thorpe gone."

Once more the long, strangely poignant silence. And to Jody it seemed a terrible thing that what they both wanted was the same thing, and that yet the smoky years somehow managed to stand between.

Jody Gordon turned away from Bill Roper, and faced Dusty King's cross, clean-lined and slender, and there was something in her face that was enduring. It was the face of a woman who turned to the future without trace of doubt or fear; and she was the loveliest thing that Bill Roper would ever see.

"Jody," Bill Roper said uncertainly, "I want to tell you something. Other men will have to fight other wars; but my part of all that is finished. I'm not sorry my gun is hung up. I hope it's hung up forever. Once I thought that when Thorpe was smashed, my work would be through—but now I see it's only begun. I think we're going to build something pretty fine, if you'll stay by me."

Jody smiled a little. Without taking her eyes from the cross she reached her hand toward him, and took his.

"All the anger and the hate has gone out of me," Roper said; "and if you can only some day understand that my riding with the wild bunch was—what I had to do—"

He fumbled for words, and stopped.

"Give me your knife," Jody said.

"My—my what?"

She turned, and herself drew his skinning knife from the sheath at his belt. Then she stepped to the ground.

"In justice," Jody said; "in justice, and in memory of courage."

With her own hands she cut the third notch upon the cross, deep and clean.

[THE END]

(WNU Service)

Around the campfires in the Canadian wilderness men began muttering over the mysterious disappearance of six frontiersmen who had hit the Chibougamau Trail and never returned. They were in terror of Jules Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete Blanche.

But Garry Finlay, brother of one of the missing men, marched into the forbidden country with two others and Flame, his giant airedale. Neither bullets nor poison could hold them back. At last, scorched by the leaping flames of a forest fire, they solved the mystery of the missing men and brought retribution upon the murderers.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 5:9-13; Titus 2:1-8.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth.—Matthew 5:13.

The church has a grave responsibility regarding alcoholic beverages, but in recent years it has largely failed to meet it with intelligence and enthusiasm. Let us never forget that the first business of the Christian and of the church is to preach the gospel, winning men to Christ. It is not our calling to attempt by social or economic methods to right the wrongs of this world. Nor is ours a "social gospel" with the emphasis on "social." But have we forgotten that it is a gospel with serious social implications and responsibilities?

The man, and the church, who follows Christ should be vitally concerned about every influence in American life which is destructive to character, and right at the top of that list stands alcohol. To meet this gigantic (and growing) problem effectively the church must be

I. Separated From Sin (I Cor. 5:9, 10).

A church living in careless worldliness has no testimony against the sin round about it. In fact, its influence is definitely on the wrong side. The Christian is to be in the world, but not of it. He must live with the sinners, but he must never by word or deed, or even by his presence in the wrong place, seem to condone their sin nor fellowship with them in it.

Here we have one of the horrible weaknesses of our day. Men and women who profess to follow Christ (whether they really do, only He can judge) indulge in a social glass of wine, or sip a cocktail "for the sake of courtesy," or attend gatherings which are obviously non-Christian or anti-Christian. If there is to be effective dealing with any problem—with the liquor problem—we must have separated Christian living.

II. Cleansed of Wicked Persons (I Cor. 5:11-13).

Even a "man that is called a brother" (v. 11) may not be one at all, but may be a "wicked person" (v. 13). We are not able to judge any man's spiritual experience. His relationship to God is a matter between him and God, but if, in his life, he shows himself persistently to be on the side of wickedness, it is the duty of the church to have him "put away from among" them (v. 13).

We can only judge a man by his actions, but we are required to do that for the sake of the purity of the church and the effectiveness of its teaching. This is not to be done in self-righteousness, but in humility and with the constant effort to restore such a one (Gal. 6:1). But it should be done. We are woefully weak in the matter of church discipline, and it shows in the inability of the church to do valiant service for God and country.

III. Intelligent in Doctrine (Titus 2:1-3; esp. 1, 7, 8).

To be informed is to be wise, able to plan properly, balanced in judgment and action, useful and effective. Fundamentally every problem of life finds its solution in a proper knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian faith. It is of great importance that we have information about the liquor traffic, about the dreadful results of the use of alcohol, etc. Helpful material on such subjects is available, and the sources are known to ministers and Christian workers. However, we must hold and use this information in relation to Christian truth if it is to be fully useful. A temperance worker without Christ in his own life and in his labors against liquor is weak, lacking the real solution and the dynamics to proclaim it effectively.

IV. Consistent in Life (Titus 2:1-8; esp. 2, 5, 7).

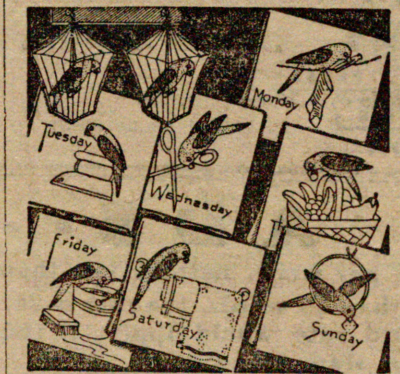

It is what we are that speaks so loudly that folk do not pay any attention to what we say. This passage clearly states the fact that both young and old, both men and women—yes, even the preacher (v. 7)—are to present before the world the undeniable teaching of a consistent Christian life.

Read the exhortations of these verses again with great care and apply them first to your own life, and then to your own church. What great Christian graces we have here! Note that again and again there is the admonition to temperance. No user of intoxicants can be sober, temperate, discreet, chaste, sound in faith, and so on.

The writer of these notes is convinced that the only consistent position for the Christian (individually or in the church) to take regarding alcoholic beverages is that of total abstinence for himself and the legal elimination of temptation from others.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

PALOS PARK

By Dorothy Robson

Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Bressler, the former commissioner of Highways in Palos Park, are enjoying a two weeks vacation in Canada.

Among the new homes being erected this summer in Palos Park, is the one Mr. Ben Hying is building for himself at 119th and 87th Ave. They expect to move in by September 1st.

Mrs. John Lowry and family of Midlothian spent one day last week visiting the Gordon Powell family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powell returned Sunday from their week's vacation at Powell's Piney Point in Eagle River, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strand and daughter Norma left Tuesday morning for Cambridge, Illinois to visit relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Strand only spent a night, returning home the next day, but Norma is going to spend some time there.

ORLAND PARK

The Orland Park Village Board signed up a $35,000 WPA project at their meeting Monday night. The project calls for the excavation of the Wabash subway, building of side walks, parts of streets and other improvements. The village buys the materials and the WPA furnishes the labor. In some instances the WPA even pays for materials. Work on the excavation of the Wabash subway is set to start July 28th.

The village board also took over 450 feet of water main in the Collins subdivision.

The annual appropriation budget of the village for the ensuing year is being worked on and will be presented for adoption at the next meeting of the board within the next two weeks.

The Orland Park postoffice is being outfitted with all modern equipment. New tables, filing cabinet and a odern stamp canceling machine have been installed. Postmaster A. J. Toelle is to be commended on his good work.

The Orland Park Fire Dept., met in special session Monday night to complete final arrangements for the Firemen picnic to be held Sunday in the Gee Grove.

Building operations have been begun on the new residence of Lawrence Burkhardt.

The special Children's Day program at the Methodist Church last Sunday were very largely attended.

The funeral services held last Sunday for Mrs. Pauline Oelke from the Christ Lutheran church were very largely attended.

The Orland Park village board is coming to the financial aid of the Orland Park Library by way of a special library levy of one and two tenths mills on local taxes. The money so raised will be administered by a committee of nine members to be appointed with one member of the village board included.

"I WANTED WINGS"

As pompous as the skies.....as mighty as our vast nation is "I Wanted Wings", a thrill infested saga of America's flying youth, upholding the superb performances of Ray Milland, Wm. Holden, Veronica Lake and Wayne Morris, which will be featured at the Roxy Theatre at Lockport, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The greatest musical extravaganza of all time, "Ziegfeld Girl", starring James Stewart, Judy Garland, Hedy Lamarr and Lana Turner, will be featured at the Roxy Theatre, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Dancing girls, the delectable darlings of the country. Singing girls. Reckless girls.. Wise girls. They are all congealed in this mighty musical drama of a fabulous area. It is truly a musical to outclass all other musicals.

Saturday only the Roxy will feature a twin-billing of "Singapore Woman", with Brenda Marshall and David Bruce and "Mutiny in the Arctic", with Andy Devine and Richard Arlen.

PALOS HEIGHTS BEAUTY SALON

Located at 124th and Harlem Avenue, Palos Heights, is "Exclusive, but not Expensive"—Using The Best Of Supplies And Equipment—Caters To Discriminating Ladies Of This Section—Many Of The More Charming Women Depend Upon Them For Their Beauty Service. Under The Direction of Jewel Schmidt, proprietor and Helen Johnson her able assistant. Tel. Palos Park 199.

The Palos Heights Beauty Salon is noted for its smart styles in beauty culture and for the fact that it gives to each patron a touch of individuality, the manager studying each customer.

They have made an extensive study of the various types of women from the beginning of history to modern times and in their imagination she forecasts the woman of tomorrow.

Each and every patron is given a survey and they are able to offer suggestions that will add to her charm and give her hair dressing and beauty service a touch of individuality, that will make her distinctive but at the same time it will be unnoticeable and have that subtle effect that makes her presence in any crowd the admiration of all.

This shop offers a very comprehensive service including the leading and best methods of permanent waving, facials and make-up scientific scalp treatments, hair tinting and manicuring and in fact covers every phase of modern beauty culture. All you have to do is to tell them to go the limit and they will enhance your personality, by the proper beauty aids so that you will be enticing.

At Palos Heights Beauty Salon they have the latest in equipment and appointments and feature all phases of beauty culture. They have selected the best permanent waving systems as being among the most approved and popular systems of the day. These have been tried and found entirely satisfactory. Other services are equally as satisfactory.

In making this 1941 review we are pleased to compliment the Palos Heights Beauty Salon upon the part it is playing in modern life and would suggest that a visit here will prove satisfactory in every way.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 13.

The Golden Text was, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (John 13: 34, 35).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you" (Luke 22: 19, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our Eucharist is spiritual communion with the one God. Our bread, 'which cometh down from heaven,' is Truth. 'Our cup is the cross.' Our wine the inspiration of Love, the draught our Master drank and commended to his followers" (p. 35).

FRANKFORT

The Ladies Aid of St. Evang & Ref. Church attended an electrical demonstration at the Geo. Bettenhausen farm July 10. A representative of the Public Service Co., gave an interesting lecture on lighting systems used in modern homes. Another young lady demonstrated the cooking and other kitchen utensils suitable for present day conveniences. This was followed with a luncheon served on the lawn to 55 members.

The Amite Sewing Club will meet with Mrs. Herbert Gullicksen July 22.

The annual picnic given by the Fire Department will be held Sunday July 20 in the Frankfort grove.
WLS Stars will be the center of attraction.

The Softball team played New
Lenox July 11 and were defeated
11 to 10. Monday night they played Mokena and lost 3 to 2 in a 12 inning game.

Miss Marion Hossbach has returned to her clerical duties at the Clover Farm store following an absence thru illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Letts of
Kansas were guests of Mr. and Mrs.
Chas. Pfaff last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lenhardt entertained in their home last Sunday honoring the birthday of their son,
Howard, which was also celebrated on Saturday. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Clark Baker of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hagmeyer and Gladys, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Stocker and Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eichholzer of Joliet; also Mr. and Mrs. Pat Corcoran of Lockport and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Klinek and Miss Judith Lenkart of Chicago Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fink and Mr.
and Mrs. Gus Osterman of Chicago
Heights visited Friday night in the Lenhardt home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Soucie and daughter returned Sunday from a vacation spent in Michigan.

Henry Knippel underwent a serious operation in the Research hospital in Chicago July 7. His condition is slowly improving.

Mrs. Clarence Warning underwent an operation in Silver Cross hospital and is improving nicely.

Miss Loretta Mast had her tonsils removed last Monday.

Mrs. Lydia Kreck and Mrs. Ella
Wolf of Los Angeles, Cal., were guests in the Conrad Wilson home last Friday.

The twin sons of Mr. and Mrs.
Burnett Schram have been removed to their home, but visitors will not be allowed until September, as a precaution for their health.

A miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Hildegard Hirsch of Joliet was given in the Green Garden hall
July 8th. Decorations were in peach and blue. Airplane bunco was played with awards going to Mrs. Ferdinand Scheer and Mrs. Geo. Haas.
Duplicate prizes were given to the bride-to-be. Refreshments were served to the forty guests by Mrs. Jerry Hossbach, Mrs. Emil
Deist, Mrs. Wm. Rahm and Mrs.
Arthur Marti.

The 5th meeting of the Sunshine 4-H club took place on July 9 at the home of our leader Mrs. Urbach. A talk was given by Helen Stege. Luc-illa Hoger gave a demonstration on how to make a bound button hole,
and Mildred Steinbren and Lucile
Kampe played the piano. Mildred Steinborn also demonstrated how to set in a zipper. After the business meeting Lexicon was played. After that a delicious lunch was enjoyed by all. Our next meeting will be on

July 19 when Mary Wright will speak to the club.

I wish to correct the last article.
It was stated Dorothy Hoger played the accordion, but instead it was Luella Hoger.

This offer ends August 15, 1941

Here's how this truly remarkable summer plan works! You make only a small down payment toward the purchase of the heater, pay the balance in convenient monthly amounts with your gas service bill. We pay the cost of installation and allow you 90 days for home trial. Then if you are not completely satisfied, we will remove it and reinstall your old heater.

Hundreds of families in Northern Illinois took advantage of this plan when it was first introduced last season: And here is your chance to get the same big benefits those families are enjoying—the amazing convenience, dependability and economy of Automatic Gas Hot Water Service.

Your home needs these benefits, and now is certainly the time to invest wisely in the future of your home!

All this can be yours for years to

--Under One Management

This is truly a "live-wire" concern whose management is on its toes to see that its friends and patrons get the most metropolitan service.

At this Service Station your patronage is appreciated. Your windshield is wiped, tires, oil checked and all quickly and friendly, one simply feels at home. And if you are not one of the steady customers, just try this station out on your next trip to Tinley Park.

Remember you are always welcome here.

Funk's Luncheonette has attained a great popularity among people from all over the surrounding territory, offers the best of foods.

In traveling over the country you will find nothing in greater profusion than poor luncheonettes. That is why it is indeed refreshing to go to such an up-to-date establishment as this. It is unsurpassed in quality of food or accommodation of service.

Those wonderful Bar-B-Q Sandwiches and Malted Milks served at Funk's are suited for a King's taste.

Here you will find everything pure and wholesome and deliciously appetizing. There is not a more popular place than this one and there is not one that has attained a greater measure of popularity.

The fact that they have sandwiches, and all kinds of soft drinks brings them much business from the outlying districts as people know that no matter what time they can always find everything in readiness for a quick Sip or Nip, and we recommend Funk's Service to all our readers in this 1941 Review.

W. C. L. S. is one of the modern stations in the country. Aside from the best equipment they have radio operators and broadcasters who are plainly heard in all announcements. No matter whether it is merely the stating of what is to come next on the market, baseball or other event, you will find that the voice from W. C. L. S. rings clear and distinct.

Commercial broadcasting over W. C. L. S. has become very popular among business men over this part of the state as well as the national advertisers. When your business is broadcast here all will sit up and take notice. Their rates are very reasonable. All you have to do is call them over the phone and they will arrange every detail. If you do not happen to have in mind subject matter for the occasion they will write it for you, furnish the announcer or put you on the radio, just as you desire.

The special features W. C. L. S., brings to you each day are:

"News of the Hour" 7 a. m., to 10 p. m. on the hour.

"Magazine of the Air" especially designed for women. Includes news of what women are doing all over the world. Style hints, favorite recipes and interesting interviews with prominent women 10 a. m., Monday thru Friday.

ABBOTT'S SUPER MARKET

MR. HOLLIS R. ABBOTT, PROP.

4901 W. 159th St.

Phone Tinley Park 32-J-1

From the very opening of these stores they have been exceedingly popular with the general public, due to the outstanding bargains on quality meats, and groceries and other food supplies. They have brought from the markets of the world a choice of the finest and most wholesome foods procurable.

Buyers for their meat department are all experts in the selection of meats that are all that the most exacting housewife demands. Newly perfected means of transportation and preservation are bringing daily new and delightful delicacies, right to your table. Food to make the most fastidious of fathers forget his table manners and become for the time being an eager ten-year-old, food to delight dinner guests, to make every meal you serve a savory surprise. Abbott's Super Market have conspired to give their many and ever increasing number of customers all that is best in way of Foods and together with this the management has sought and obtained the services of courteous, efficient clerks who delight in rendering you every visit to Abbott's Super Market one of complete satisfaction.

Here, at the Great Store, at your ease and without effort, you may fill the most bountiful basket that ever came into your kitchen, to the surprise of your family and your budget. People of this section are daily expressing their appreciation of the way these markets are kept. Sanitation is one of the pet hobbies of the management, and that the public approves such a hobby is attested to by the number of people who make the Abbotts Super Market their headquarters for better food values.

Distribution of food has always been a major problem, because of the tendency of some distributors to hold prices above the immediate economic price level. This is not true of this market. Their policy has always been to secure the best quality and then to serve it to the public at a decided savings. They early realized that the modern American housewife is a keen judge of food values, so they instructed their buyers to secure the best always, but to buy it in large enough quantities in order that the market might offer on each item unusual quality and economy.

SIEMSEN IMPLEMENT SALESSALES & SERVICE
ELMER SIEMSEN, Prop.

Conveniently located in Tinley Park for our readers of South Cook, Will and Kankakee and surrounding counties featuring the famous implement line of McCormick-Deering and Machinery and International Trucks. All phones day or night: Tinley Park 200.

This is South Cook, Will and Kankakee counties' outstanding Truck and Farm Implement house catering directly to the farmer and in addition are offering an expert and dependable garage service to many farmers of this section.

Mr. Siemsen the proprietor wishes to extend through this article an invitation to all South Cook Will and Kankakee agricultural men to visit his fine display of the 1941 models of Farmall all-purpose Tractors and McCormick-Deering Tractor Implements and International Trucks the location being Tinley Park, Ill. They have also gained wide favor for their prompt service on hurry-up orders for replacement parts and repairs.

Elmer Siemsen made an exhaustive study of the type of farm machinery particularly suited to the cultivation of this section and has always been keen to add the latest development to their line as soon as it was found to be of value. We also wish to state that you will never find any member of this firm too busy to explain in detail or to demonstrate the many refinements of McCormick-Deering Implements, Farmall Tractors or International Trucks or to add their expert advice and counsel to any of your farm cultivating problems.

This policy has created for Elmer Siemsen many steady clients among farmers of our section and we are glad in this 1941 Review to compliment the firm and its personnel on their outstanding service and refer them to all our readers as a firm very worthy.

CAVETT'S REXALL DRUG STORE

PRESCRIPTIONS A SPECIALTY
Complete Line of Drugs and Sundries
17348 OAK PARK AVE. Tinley Park 88

We Deliver

They have a full line of drugs, druggist sundries and practically every proprietary medicine known. These are all secured from the very best houses and are pure and tested.

The fact that the management had a thorough training in the profession makes him careful in the filling of all prescriptions to see that the compounding is correctly done; proper directions are attached and everything is exact. This department is highly recommended by the physicians and well patronized by people for many miles.

They specialize in the carrying of standard goods which are known the country over. No matter whether it is a proprietary medicine, perfumes, toilet articles, or any of the other specialties you will find on it the stamp of a well-known manufacturer who stands behind the products as does also this store.

Cigars, candies and specialties, as well as the long line of druggist sundries, are here furnished the public with the most accommodating service.

The proprietor, Mr. Cavett, of the Rexall Store, is one of those genial and whole souled personalities who dispenses good cheer on all occasions.

The prescription department is under the personal supervision of Mr. Cavett, and the most careful attention is given to this end of the business. For of all branches of a Drug Store, this is one of the most important because of the fact that the lives of so many people are dependent on the compounds.

Special mention should be made of the Soda Fountain, where they dispense only the best.

We are glad to refer this reliable store and citizen to our readers, as a real booster for our forward progress in this 1941 Review.

People used to say "Meet me at the old town pump", but in this section they say "Meet me at the Funk Bros. Tavern" located at 17332 Oak Park Ave. Tinley Park. Here the best of beer, most all kinds of drinks and the best of luncheons may be had at an extremely reasonable price.

If you are one of many that follow the crowds you are dining and dancing at the Funk Bros. Tavern. If not you are missing some of the most pleasant times and joyous parties this section affords. Here the spirit of fellowship and good times prevail throughout the evening, and no matter what time you arrive, you will find your friends here enjoying the pleasant surroundings, delicious food and beautiful music.

The service is excellent, prices are moderate and the sanitary condition is above reproach. The surroundings are just the kind you desire to enjoy a pleasant meal. You are always welcome at the Funk Bros. Tavern.

People from many miles around prefer going here for the management is at all times, endeavoring to procure just what the public wants. The "customer is the boss", and you will find your wants are well taken care of here. In this 1941 Review of Better Business we wish to say that if you are in search of a good time, you can do no better than to drop in at the Funk Bros. Tavern.

STACEYS BEAUTY & BARBER SHOP

ALLEN K. STACEY, PROP.
MISS BARBARA CHRISTIE, MGR.
Connie Lange & Annett Stucchi, Operators
CICERO AVENUE OAK FOREST, PHONE TINLEY PARK 22-W-2

The management of this shop is endeavoring to give the public the very best service at all times. All equipment is very modern and up-to-date in every respect. The work is done by experts who cater to the individual needs, desires and commands of the customers in a manner which is largely responsible for the wide popularity of this establishment. Nothing is left undone to please the most exacting person.

This barber shop is a service station for men and ladies who care to keep well groomed. Here you will find skilled service, a specialty is made of ladies' and children's work.

We suggest to the reinitiated that you pay a visit to this local shop. You can receive every advantage that your successful neighbor has acquired in business and social pursuits if you pay frequent visits to this reliable shop. The work is of the highest standard at prices satisfactory to the purse.

Price, quality and service are the foundations upon which this beauty shop has been founded. In this shop are employed licensed operators who are thoroughly trained in the art of permanent waving. The machines they have are the latest and best on the market.

Phone this modern beauty shop for an appointment and you will be one of their enthusiastic and steady patrons.

Take any barber's chair available which can well be termed a "Seat of Success" and he will give you a groomed air of prosperity that means money in your pocket. When shaved, shingled and shampooed, "You're next" to an accepted means of gaining success.

We recommend the Beauty & Barber shop to all the community. It is recognized as a place of merit and all who have had work done there are high in its praise.

MOKENA STATE BANK

MR. OTTO A. BARTELS, CASHIER
Phone: Mokena 2271

Serving Will County For Years The Officials and Employees of this Bank will Endeavor at all Times to Maintain a Friendly Atmosphere and Will Offer Every Service Consistent With Safe Banking Principles. New Accounts are Solicited.

Located in the heart of Mokena this financial institution came into prominence by reason of its perfectly complete and reliable service.

Having a Savings or Checking Account is nothing short of a necessity for anyone who has the handling of money. Mokena State Bank is one of the leading financial institutions of the State.

The policy of this Bank is accommodation and convenience to customers. Liberal without being careless; conservative, without being hide bound. The best interests of its customers are always consulted and they determine the course it shall follow in every instance, except where those interests would conflict with or prove a menace to the welfare of the community at large.

Time has demonstrated the soundness of the policies on which the first Board of DIRECTORS founded this Bank, and which have continued throughout its existence. Through the many periods of financial stress, Mokena State Bank has been amply able to care for its customers, because its daily affairs have consistently been conducted in a sane, conservative and normal manner.

And so, in this 1941 Review we recommend the Mokena State Bank and Mr. Otto A. Bartels to all of our readers as worthy of their fullest support and patronage.

HARRY BALCHOWSKY

GENERAL MERCHANDISE GROCERIES AND FRESH MEAT
ASH STREET Phone 2631 FRANKFORD, ILL.
64 Years Faithful Service in this Community

The Big Store With Little Prices!

Here is a man who is a business man and who has made a splendid record by featuring advertised quality merchandise at right prices and rendering splendid service.

Mr. Balchowsky's overhead is low and his customers receive the benefit. You can always depend on getting the highest price for eggs and produce. Many of the customers claim that they secure better prices at this store than are offered in larger towns. Why not be one of his satisfied customers? He is in Frankfort 365 days in the year to serve you. His store is home-owned and he gives his customers a square deal.

the year around, offering numerous advantages which cannot be obtained from chain organizations.

His name is well and favorably known and he has gained the reputation of offering dependable goods at rock bottom prices. This store has served the community well and faithfully and furnishes good merchandise right at your door, so to speak, and certainly merits a fair share of your patronage.

Harry Balchowsky's merchandise is well recommended as are also his clean cut business methods and general personality and service.

He refuses to sell any food product he would not serve on his own table.

TINLEY PARK DAIRY INC.

R. FREBERG and H. VAN VAULKENBERG, Props.
171st STREET Phone T. P. 102 TINLEY PARK
Conveniently located in Tinley is a Dairy whom we all know

This is a prominent sanitary institution which has aided in the up-building of the community and renders a valued and an essential service in the furnishing of their milk and cream which in years has enlarged their business and is admirably equipped to serve the trade which they supply all over this section. A well known concern under a management with every feature of the business.

Their supply of milk and cream comes from the healthiest and best fed cows in this particularly advantageous section. The plant is positively as sanitary as long experience and the expenditure of much money can make it, and it is in the hands of men who are thoroughly conversant with every feature of the business.

There is no reason why they should not occupy a prominent place in the better class of dairy markets and the above are some of the reasons why their brands are more and more popular with particular buyers, and why this concern is prospering far beyond even the promoters' expectations.

In making this 1941 review we are glad to compliment the Tinley Park Dairy Inc., upon the policy the business of the establishment is conducted and to say that this firm will greatly aid in the development of this section of the state. We refer this dairy to our readers.

SERVICE BAKERY INC.

PHONE 266. 173rd ST. TINLEY PARK,
Mr. FRED FRENDELER, PROP.
BREAD- White, Rye, Whole Wheat, Cracked Wheat.
"The Family Service Loaf"
FRESH BAKERY GOODS DAILY

Success and happiness depend on health and health depends upon the quality of food we eat. Good bread is essential to every man, woman and child in America. Today, the responsibility of making good bread has been placed on the baker.

Recognizing this responsibility, this company backed by long and continued effort to make an even better bread, now gives to the people a most delicious and distinctive loaf. It is a bread to meet and satisfy the taste of the most discriminating, a bread that will satisfy the hungry appetite.

A well functioning delivery system prompt service and reliability are characteristics of this firm, which makes a habit of delivering good service along with delicious merchandise.

The first requisite in the making of good bread is to equip the plant with the latest and most approved labor saving machinery. This firm has spared no time nor expense in installing complete and sanitary equipment for the economical production of "the staff of life."

In fact it is just the kind of plant you would want your bread made in.

By means of automatically operated machines the bread is scarcely touched by human hands during the entire process. In this 1941 Review we compliment the Service Bakery Inc., and recommend their products to our readers.

BREMEN STATE BANK

TINLEY PARK—PHONE 3
Member Federal Reserve System
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

There are certain definite advantages in associating with a State Bank. Here you can enjoy every modern feature of strength and security.

The Bremen State Bank is chartered by the Federal Government under whose close supervision it operates. They have as members of the Federal Reserve System enormous resources behind them and are thus able to protect their depositors to the fullest extent, regardless of the business or financial condition of the country.

The history of this bank has been bound up closely with the prosperity and progress of this and surrounding territory. Their years of service to the people have been marked by efficiency in routine transactions and sound judgment in emergencies and opportunities all of which gives maximum value to a banking relationship.

The Board of Directors is composed of successful local business men of recognized ability and integrity. They represent the vision of an organization with a big purpose—the harmony of service and safety. It is a bank where safety and service meet.

Here your money is safeguarded. You have a State Bank Safety for your savings. A friendly welcome awaits you.

The people of this community are fortunate in having this prominent financial institution among them.

They are therefore worthy of the fullest support and patronage of our readers.

In a comprehensive review of this nature, embracing as it does the most salient features of our progress, we cannot fail to devote to the professional status of the community and justly so to a profession which is so essential as that of the modern funeral director and embalmer. In this respect, this community possess an efficient representative in the Orville J. Schmaedeke Funeral Home.

Since the foundation of his business, he has always been foremost in giving the best service. Not only has this accrued to the benefit of the public, but has built for him a reputation that has spread for miles. This firm is courteous and it is a pleasure for him to serve the public.

His establishment is complete from a standpoint of stock and from it he is able to offer service unexcelled in any city.

One particular feature of this establishment is the privacy for the funeral, the atmosphere is more of the homelike, giving it a touch of cheerfulness, in the funeral home that same home-like atmosphere prevails that is different from sadness plus every facility that is needed to perform the services with the utmost satisfaction to their patrons will be found in their funeral home. It is a beautiful, quiet, restful place affording all the privacy comforts and conveniences of a private residence as well as an institution for the service of humanity.

All work is done privately in their most sanitary and up to date preparation room.

As is well known, he has conducted some of the largest funerals ever held in this section in an admirable manner and their excellent facilities make it possible for them to render complete service. We wish in this 1941 review to compliment this firm on the satisfactory service it is rendering the people of this section.

CRISPLY COOL ON A SUMMER DAY!
(See Recipes Below)

THIRST QUENCHER IDEAS

The thermometer's soaring and the summer sun's too hot, you say? Then you'll want a cool, gracious drink with tinkling ice to lift your wilted spirits.

Indeed the favorite pickup for a sultry day is nothing more than a simple drink of fruit juices, tea, or frosty milk with shimmering ice. The tartness of the fruit juices in these drinks will refresh and cool you, soothe your disposition long after you've sipped them. Besides they'll give vitamins and minerals to pep you up even more.

For a really quick cooling drink you might try some of the prepared fruit juice powders on the market. They can be mixed in a flash and give a very satisfying beverage. The children will like working with them, too, and won't muss the kitchen if they have this type of easy preparation to use.

Summer drinks can be especially attractive when served with those fragrant sprigs of mint you have growing on the side of the house, strawberries from the patch, or long, lengthwise slices of lemon to bring out the delicate flavor of tea. Ice cubes with cherries, red berries, mint leaves, orange or lemon slices, or fruit juices all frozen in the cubes will make your thirst quenchers a joy to look at.

Iced Tea.
Tea must be made double strength when used with ice, so use 2 teaspoons for each cup of water. Measure 1 cup of freshly drawn water, bring to a boil. Pour over leaves, let steep 5 minutes, then strain into a pitcher. Cool, pour into glasses filled with ice, two-thirds full. Serve with slices of lemon.

You can do such delightful things with this combination of tea, oranges and mint, so here's a recipe which you might like to try. It's a company favorite!

Orange Mint Julep. (Serves 10)

6 glasses of strong tea
2 cups sugar
½ cup water
1 orange rind grated
Juice of six oranges
Sprays of mint

Boil the sugar and water and grated orange rind for 5 minutes. Remove from fire, add crushed mint leaves and let cool. To the strained tea add orange juice, and pour into glasses which are half-filled with crushed ice, and sweeten to taste with the strained mint syrup. You'll like this garnished with mint sprays and floating orange slices.

For a really exhilarating drink that has nutritive value so vital to lift lagging spirits, here's eggs and milk combined with fruit and juices. It's so-o-o good and looks like a charm.

LYNN SAYS:

A snowy frost on the glass in which you serve your cooling summer drinks is very attractive and simple to make. All you do is dip the top of the glass before it is filled into slightly beaten egg white and then into granulated sugar. Allow to dry thoroughly before using.

If you'd like a true frost for the glass try a drink which is guaranteed to have one. Such are the old-fashioned "granits" which may be of any flavor you desire. The granit is a half-frozen drink which is put in the refrigerator or freezer until a light snow-frost appears, but leaves the drink still liquid enough to pour.

For a strawberry granit, mash a quart of berries and cover with 1½ pounds of sugar, then set aside for several hours to let a syrup form. Drain and press through a sieve. Add 1 tablespoon of strawberry extract, then mix with 1 pint of water. Freeze until the top is snow-frosted and serve in long, thin glasses.

Fruit Float. (Serves 2)

1 cup water
2 cups sugar
Juice of 2 lemons
Juice of 2 oranges
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup fresh raspberries or strawberries
Chopped ice
Boil the sugar and water for 5 minutes. Cool. Mix all the ingredients except the ice and beat thoroughly. Chill. When ready to serve, pour into glasses half filled with ice. Garnish with a few whole berries.

Fruit Swizzle. (Serves 8-10)

1 quart strong tea
1 quart ginger ale
Juice of 3 lemons
1 small bottle maraschino cherries
Juice of 3 oranges
2 cups pineapple juice
1 cup diced or crushed pineapple
Mix all the ingredients together, sweeten to taste and serve iced.

Here's an old-fashioned treat that always makes new friends. I can still remember how nice the kitchen smelled when mother used to put it up, and then again how hospitable everyone thought she was when unexpected guests came and she served this drink. It has a delightful color, and unusual flavor.

Currant Syrup With Raspberries. (Makes 3 quarts)

1 pint currant juice
2 pounds sugar
6 pounds currants
1 pound sour cherries
1 pound raspberries
1½ pints water

Pick, wash, seed, and dry the currants carefully. Seed and stem the cherries, and the raspberries. Pound and mash them well and let stand in a cool place for 36 hours. Then strain through a bag. Cook the sugar and water until it will snap when tested in cold water. Then add the fruit syrups, let boil 5 minutes, remove from fire. Let it get cold and then put up in bottles.

Cinnamon Almond Float. (Serves 6)

½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 quart cold milk
1 teaspoon almond extract
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 pint vanilla ice cream
Combine sugar and cinnamon; add milk and flavorings and stir until sugar is dissolved. Pour into tall glasses and top each with a generous spoonful of ice cream.

Coconut Flake Cookies. (Makes 5 dozen)

1½ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups corn flakes or bran flakes
1 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups shredded coconut

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again; add flakes. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add vanilla. Add flour and flakes mixture, mixing well. Add coconut. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased baking sheet and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes, or until done. For variation ½ cup chopped nuts may be added to mixture before baking.

Operations for Knee Injuries Now Quite Safe

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONE of the injuries football, basketball, baseball players and other athletes sustain is a loose cartilage in the knee. This cartilage serves as a cushion between the two bones forming the knee joint and as the knee joint supports the whole weight of the body, anything that disturbs that cushion means not only a painful knee but a knee that will not support the weight of the body.

My own treatment in "fresh" injuries was to strap the knee up with adhesive tape, replacing the tape every few days for two or three weeks. In more severe cases, the knee was placed in a plaster cast for three to five weeks.

The question naturally asked is why did these loose cartilage cases undergo operation? To be quite frank, it was not until recent years that the physician or surgeon has felt free to recommend operation because so many operations resulted in a "stiff" knee; in fact, very little motion remained after operation.

These knee injuries are just as common today as ever, but if adhesive or plaster cast treatment fails to give results, most physicians feel free to recommend operation owing to the satisfactory results which are now obtained. These satisfactory results have been obtained because the patient now receives a thorough examination and any infection—teeth, tonsils, sinuses—is removed before operation.

Reports Results.

In recording his results in operation of 50 of these cases, Dr. Harold R. Bohman, Johns Hopkins university, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, outlines his method of preparation, recommends the use of a local instead of a general anesthetic, the complete removal of blood from the joint, and injection of air, with gentle movement of the joint within a few days after operation.

The hospital stay is from three to seven days instead of the two or three weeks of former years.

Hernia Treatment For Elderly Folks

ALL physicians have patients consult them regarding a hernia or rupture. In nearly all cases, the patient being well and strong, operation has usually been advised. Operation means getting rid of a truss.

Fortunately, with the discovery of injecting hernias, this method makes operation unnecessary in about one-third of all cases.

Some older patients with hernia who have perhaps worn a truss for 30 or 40 years and have never liked the idea of operation may be wondering whether the injection method is suitable in old cases or in old individuals.

Dr. L. Manoil, New York, in Archives of Surgery, Chicago, presents some figures regarding the injection method. During the period between February, 1936, and February, 1939, 158 hernias in 123 patients (some with hernia on both sides) were treated by the injection method in Dr. Manoil's clinic. Ninety-two per cent of these cases were between 41 and 90 years of age. The hernia returned in 26 patients or about 16 per cent of this group and five patients were operated on after injection, making total failures about 20 per cent. In the 15 patients between 11 and 40 years of age, no hernias returned. There were no infections and no deaths.

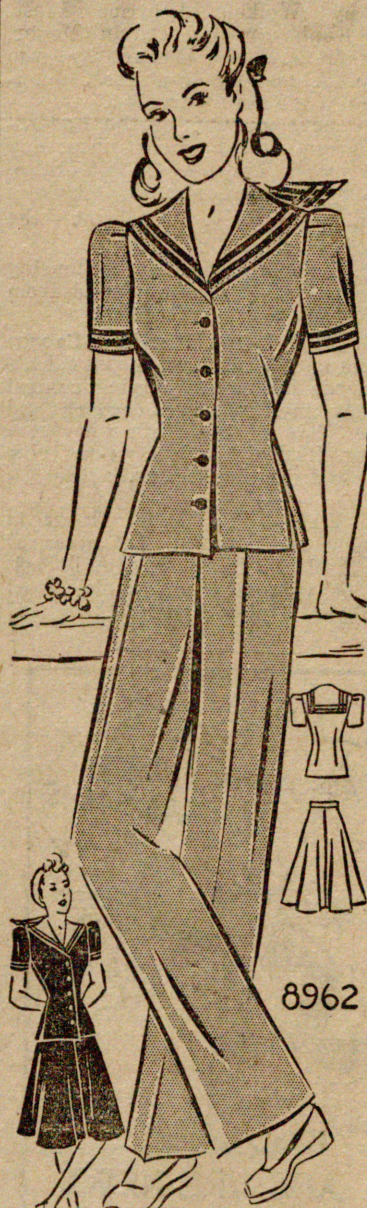

From the above figures showing that four of every five older patients were cured by the injection method, Dr. Manoil believes the injection method should be used in older patients who are considered poor surgical risks, and because of their state of nutrition, or other condition present. It should also be used in younger patients who refuse operation but are willing to undergo the injection method even though it takes weeks and months to bring about a cure.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Acid fruits cause me to break out with hives. Should I avoid these foods, thereby depriving myself of necessary vitamins?

A.—You are sensitive or allergic to certain foods. If you want to be free of hives, you'll have to avoid the foods you "know" cause them. Treatment is to start with a very small amount of the food or foods causing the hives, gradually increasing the amount until system can take them without disturbance.

Brown Was Starting Early To Get Along With the Cook

The bus was starting in the midst of a torrent of rain, when the conductor put his head inside and inquired: "Will any gentleman get out and oblige a lady?" "She can come inside and sit on my knee, if she likes," said a passenger, jocularly, and, to his great surprise, in bounced a buxom woman, who forthwith appropriated the offered knee.

After a time the man, Brown, by name, got into conversation with his burden, and asked her where she was going. On hearing her destination, he exclaimed, "Why, that's my house!" "Well, then," replied the woman, blushing, "I'm your new cook."

VITAMINS AND WORKERS
 ("A Minneapolis factory has been feeding its workers vitamin and halibut oil pills to protect their health and give them more pep."—News item)

I
 A happy factory is ours—
 We do not mind the daily toil;
 We like the boss and he likes us—
 It's largely done by liver oil;
 We work and do it with a song,
 Our faces are a sea of grins;
 No task is ever hard for us—
 We do it all through vitamins!

II
 A carefree family we are—
 We skip and frolic to our work;
 We chortle as we punch the clock—
 And never feel the urge to shirk;
 We gaily sing, tra la, tra loo,
 And do our tasks quite merrily—
 We feel affection for the boss
 Through vitamins from A to Z.

III
 We thrill to hear the wheels go
 'round—
 We dash around like busy bees;
 The corporation can not do
 A single thing that will not please;
 We hate to hear the whistle toot
 To tell us that it's time to quit;
 The little pills we daily take
 Make each one love to do his bit.

IV
 An extra hour doesn't count—
 We feel no urge to watch the clock;
 When there's an extra task to do
 We have the wallop and the sock;
 What if we labor overtime?
 What if the perspiration flows?
 A little oil of halibut
 At noontime keeps us on our toes.

V
 What if the time for lunch is brief?
 There is the thrill of getting back
 And finding vitamins to give
 To us the vigor that we lack;
 The joy of honest toil we feel,
 Reacting to its many thrills—
 A worker isn't quite himself
 Without his capsules and his pills.

VI
 To agitators we are deaf—
 We pay no heed to what they say;
 Their arguments are quite unheard—
 Thanks to the vitamin called A;
 Should we be urged to call a strike,
 The impulse we proceed to kill
 By paying no attention as
 We blithely take another pill.

VII
 So three cheers for our gracious boss!
 And three more for the good old shop!
 We find that working is such fun—
 It pains us when we have to stop;
 In vitamins we put our trust
 Instead of union concepts new;
 How happy would we workers be
 If all our leaders took 'em too!

Streamline the Harvest with the NEW 4-FOOT COMBINE

by INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER

HERE'S the sweetest little outfit that ever hummed through a harvest field—Harvester's brand-new 4-foot McCormick-Deering combine for power-drive operation behind a 1-plow tractor. The new No. 42 has everything its big brothers in the Harvester line have, plus new features for work on small farms. And here's the best part—you can get it at a price that's easy on your pocketbook!

One man can harvest and thresh in quick time with this fast-traveling combine. It steps along at the rate of 8 to 15 acres a day. It saves on equipment, twine, and threshing expense. It saves grain by doing the job in one operation—eliminating loss that comes with shocking, stacking, pitching, and hauling. It gets rid of the old way of saving food and waste. See it when you can.

BAGGER EQUIPMENT, including wide, roomy platform with seat, and 2-way bagging spout, available if you prefer to handle your crops in bags.
